FROM HERE YOU CAN SEE THE FUTURE.
UCLA Community School students during their lunch break.
Dear Families,

At UCLA Community School we come together to educate the mind and the heart. Our four core competencies guide us to create amazing individuals who are self-directed learners, masters of academic content, bilingual and multicultural and active participants in our society. At UCLA CS you will find a true community of learners who value a powerful education that extends beyond the classroom alongside one of the premier universities in the world. We are preparing the next generation of leaders our community needs.

Come and visit us! Your child’s future begins with us!

Thank you,

Leyda Garcia

BILINGUAL EDUCATION AND MULTI-AGE LEARNING.

Multi-age Learning Environment
Our classrooms and school structures engage students of different ages, giving them a broader social experience to learn and to lead. In the elementary grades, students are grouped in multi-age dens. In the upper grades, students meet in multi-age advisory groups. All students stay with the same teacher in these groups for two years.

We also take advantage of our K-12 grade span to bring students of all ages together for events and projects. These structures are designed to build strong relationships and support the development of each student.

Learning in Two Languages
It’s no secret that dual-language instruction improves academic achievement, promotes self-confidence, and prepares students to be citizens of our global society. This is why our elementary grade classes are taught in English and Spanish or English and Korean.
CODING, ART, SAILING, YOGA, AND MUCH MORE.

Our relationship with and proximity to UCLA provides our students with access to some of the richest educational resources in the nation. These resources include over 30 enrichment programs with UCLA and other affiliated entities. Below we highlight a few of these programs:

- Seminars – We offer a wide gamut of enriching seminars in coding, yoga, folklorico, and many other topics.

- STEM to Stern – This program is redefining hands on learning by helping students learn advanced math concepts through sailing.

- Internships – From engineering to the arts, our school helps students be career ready.

- Classroom in Residence – This program provides an intimate view of the day-to-day operations of an art museum, as well as lessons on how the great masters made their art pieces.

A SCHOOL UNLIKE ANY OTHER.

Imagine a public school with the resources of a university. It sounds incredible, doesn’t? UCLA Community School is exactly that and so much more. Our school is a partnership between UCLA and the Los Angeles Unified School District. Together, we work to educate and prepare K-12 students for the 21st century.

Our family of teachers and staff are an accomplished and diverse group — many with strong ties to the local community. They focus not only on academic success, but also on how they can help your son or daughter succeed and be college-ready.

In the following pages, we share with you the breadth of our resources, programs, and accomplishments.
